MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT

Thank you, Danno for your presentation on Turkish timepieces.

The NAWCC National Convention will be coming to Milwaukee in June of 2014. It will be exciting to showcase Milwaukee during this event. We will also be looking for volunteers from our chapter to help put on the event. Please see myself or Mike Dempsey if you are willing to help.

This month's talk will be given by Mike Dempsey on Atmos clocks. Please bring any examples you may have in your collection to share and discuss with others.

I missed November's meeting, so we will discuss the subject of insurance during the January meeting. Issue to discuss is:

Recent instances of legal claims made at recent regionals and suitcases classes have forced us to consider the need for insurance coverage for the chapter. Join us for a discussion session after the January educational program to discuss the need and amount of coverage we may want. The national has coordinated insurance coverage that is available for purchase for chapters.

Mike Paul of Paul Auction Co. has once again graciously volunteered his time for the Chapter's annual auction, now in its third year. Because Mike had a previous commitment on the initially planned date of March 11, we changed the date of the auction to March 18. Please update you calendar for this fun event.

Please pay your dues during the January meeting, remember they have been reduced from $25 to $20 for 2012.

Thank you,
Craig White

Spot a Clock—Last month's clock can be found at the northwest corner of Wisconsin Avenue and Jackson Street in Milwaukee. The attached write-up provides a summary of information on the clock. Can you guess where the "clock" below is located? The answer will be posted at the January meeting, by the coffee.

Chapter 47 November Newsletter “Spot a Clock”

Last month’s ‘Spot a Clock’ can be found at the north-west corner of Wisconsin Avenue and Jackson Street in Milwaukee. The Northern Trust Bank Building is located at 526 East Wisconsin Avenue.

The building was designed by the architectural firm Ferry & Clas. The firm designed several well-known Milwaukee buildings, including the Captain Fredrick Pabst mansion, the cathedral tower for St. John the Evangelist Church, and the Central Library Building. The building was designed in the Beaux Arts style, which flourished in the United States between 1885 and 1920. A plaque on the building indicates the building was erected in 1906 and was designated as a city landmark in 1970.

The current clock is a modern electric clock, manufactured by Electric Time Co.,. The presence of a clock in a prominent location such as this suggests an older clock predated the modern movement. However, this is an instance where the building originally did not have a clock. A colored postcard (below) from the Milwaukee Public Library’s collection, from the early period of the building’s history, does not show a clock. A 1959 photograph in the library’s collection also does not depict a clock.

A 1985 photograph (below) from the Wisconsin Historical Society shows a sign on the corner of the building, but no clock. This sign dates back to at least 1975, based on other photographs in the society’s collection

This 1998 photograph (below) from the City of Milwaukee’s property information database shows a new sign, with a clock.

The current clock (below) appears to be a better match for the building’s architecture. A building permit on the City of Milwaukee’s website was filed for a ‘sign-on premises’ in 2000, which may refer to the current clock.

If you would like to suggest a clock for the newsletter’s ‘Spot a Clock’, please contact Ed Buc at the Chapter meetings or by email at timecraft\_wi@yahoo.com.
